

Matt Zurbriggen Named Chief Deputy Engineer for Valparaiso

Matt Zurbriggen has been named Chief Deputy for the Engineering Department at the City of Valparaiso, announced Mayor Matt Murphy. “We are glad to welcome Matt Zurbriggen to our City team,” said Mayor Murphy. “Matt brings valuable experience, specializing in civil site and stormwater design and will be an excellent addition to our engineering expertise,” he said.

Zurbriggen is graduate of Trine University, earning a Bachelor of Science degree in civil engineering and a minor in environmental engineering. He is a Professional Engineer in the State of Indiana and has worked with the City of Valparaiso previously in engineering. “I’m happy to be rejoining the City of Valparaiso. I’m really looking forward to working on projects that will benefit the city where I live,” said Zurbriggen, a Valparaiso resident, along with his wife, Andrea, and newborn son, Marty. Zurbriggen is a member and vice president of the Valparaiso Rotary Satellite Club, and a member and coach at Top Fuel CrossFit.

For more information about the City of Valparaiso’s Engineering Department, visit Valpo.us.